A bank is a financial institution that serves as a financial intermediary. The term "bank" may refer to one of several related types of entities:

- A central bank circulates money on behalf of a government and acts as its monetary authority by implementing monetary policy, which regulates the money supply.
- A commercial bank accepts deposits and pools those funds to provide credit, either directly by lending, or indirectly by investing through the capital markets.
- A savings bank is similar to a savings and loan association (S&L). They can either be stockholder owned or mutually owned, in which case they are permitted to only borrow from members of the financial cooperative.

A bank's main source of income is interest paid on loans. A bank pays out at a lower interest rate on deposits and receives a higher interest rate on loans. The difference between these rates represents the bank's net income. Banks also generate non-interest income from service fees for retail and business banking products, transactional fees, or other non-traditional services such as trust and wealth management consulting, insurance, cash management services, mortgage loan closing costs, and points.

17. What does the text tell us about?
A. How to visit the bank.
B. The description of a bank.

B. People can make many kinds of transactions at the bank.
C. A bank receives non-interest income for various types of fees.
D. The net income of a bank is the result of the high interest rates.

19. Why does a bank apply a different rate of interest for loans and deposits?
A. The bank needs much cost to manage the loan.
B. The government has already made a rule about the interest.
C. The interest can persuade the customers to invest their money.
D. The different rate of interest can be the net income of the bank.

In ancient times, there was a famous general. He shot arrows with such accuracy that at the time no one was able to better him. He himself believed that he was fabulous. One day he was at the archery field during a demonstration. When he shot the gallery would from time to time erupt into applause, but looking around he discovered that two old people selling oil to the people next to the fields were not clapping.

Only with a slight nod of their heads the people admitted his shots. Unhappily he walked up to the old couple and asked, "It seems you understand archery, what do you think about my archer?" The old people answered, "We don't understand archery, we only watch." Angrily the general asked, "If you don't understand archery, why don't you applaud?" The old man slowly answered, "It's because of the oil that I sell."

He produced a bottle and placed it on the ground. Then he placed a copper coin on the mouth of the bottle. After that he used a spoon to pour the oil into the bottle through the tiny hole in the coin. He spilled not a drop and all the people around couldn't help but applaud, and the old man humbly said, "Actually it is only practice."

43. What does the text tell you about?
   A. The poor oil seller.
   B. The arrogant general.
   C. The trick of the old man.
   D. The arrow shooting contest.

For questions 33 to 36 choose the correct words to complete the text.

I have a cat. Her name is Pussy. She is my beautiful gray Persian cat. She has a small body and smooth fur. She has two round ears and four legs. She ... (33) ... with pride and grace, performing a dance of disdain as she slowly lifts and lowers each paw with the delicacy of a ballet dancer. Her pride, however, does not extend to her appearance, for she spends most of her time indoors watching television, eating, and growing. (34)

Pussy is as finicky about visitors as she is about what she eats, befriending some and repelling others. Pussy does not do this to establish her territory, as many cat experts ... (35) ... think, but to humiliate me because she is jealous of my friends. After my ... (36) ... have fled, I look at the old flea bag snoozing and smiling to her in front of the television set, and I have to forgive her for her horrid, but endearing habits.

How a Spider's Web Forms
A spider web looks delicate but it is very strong. It can hold 4000 times a spider's weight. But how does it form.
First the spider spins a thread of silk. The thread gets blown over a branch by the wind. Then she makes another two threads and makes a Y shape. Next she makes more threads and they look like spokes of a wheel. Then the spider goes in a spiral, out and back in, sits in the middle and waits for food.
This is how a web is formed.

30. The spider's web is strong because it ....
A. forms a branch of a tree where spider perches
B. looks like spokes of wheel and good spiral
C. can hold 4000 spiders of the maker's kind
D. is always made of the best threads of silk

31. What is the main idea of the second paragraph?
A. The thread gets blown over a branch by the wind.
B. The spider likes to sit still in the middle of the web.
C. It takes a long time for the spider to make its web.
D. The web catches flying insects for the spider's food.

32. The text shows that spider makes a web in order to ....
A. hunt animals
B. avoid wind
C. sleep well
D. get food

5 November 2011
Dear my pen pal,
My name is Timmy and I live in England. I am a male and I am 11 years old. I live in a house with my parents and my 2 brothers. They are Daniel and Dave. I am a student of Manchester Junior high school. My favorite part about school is our reading. I love to read especially books about comedy because they tell me funny stories. I like to play basketball. When I grow up I want to be a technician.
